

Portuguese Forum promises and delivers

(continued from page 2 and the wisdom of the Portuguese Forum in recognising that when a community stands together, there really is no such thing as impossible.

We could value all that was received in money, and it would undoubtedly be an impressive figure, but far more valuable was the value in people - it made the lives of many a great deal better. It made sure that there was at least food on the table for so many people that were suffering, but far more importantly, it has proved to us, the Community, that we can do so much. It has bridged gaps between communities in ways we would not have thought, bringing together the Portuguese, the Italians, the Brazilians, Helpende Hande, and more. Not just communities, though, but also charities and groups, and we have since seen how it has inspired others to do the same, working together to do more than they could alone. It has spoken to the public, and they have shown their good hearts, sharing what they could. It has proved to us the value of the little things, where some could only give a bag of rice or a tin of food, but when all are gathered together, it makes a huge difference.

Community is at the root of all the ideals of the Portuguese Forum, and over the years it has been proved again and again that bringing the Community together results in success, from the first public meeting at Emperors to the Caravella Festas and now again, in a real-time of need. It has been a heart-warming and also a heart-breaking journey, seeing the joy and the tears of those that received, witnessing the loyalty and support of all those that contributed and put in hard work.

It has been a journey that opened our eyes to the great need, on the one hand, but also the incredible unity and effectiveness that is (continues in page 14)
